TUESDAY JANUARY 8, 1875.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Wilmington's Mill, Nash county, is incorporated as a town. A recent snow reached the depth of six inches at Rocky Mount.

The Rocky Mount Mail is the first weekly that has reached the holidays.

A negro man named Patterson was killed in Tarboro, on Monday, whilst resisting the police authorities.

Wilmington has been under the control of "ringos" for the last few days, the result of investments in "Prof." Scott's gift enterprise in that city.

The masquerade ball in Wilmington, Thursday night was a success. The Star says the costumes were simply magnificent, while the representations of the various characters could hardly have been excelled.

Says the Rocky Mount Mail: "Dr. J. H. Tucker shot at Mr. Robert Hamlin three times on Christmas day, on the streets of Rocky Mount. One bullet passed through Hamlin's head, the second missed him, the third struck a knife in his vest pocket and glanced. Both parties were bound over in the sum of $2,000. Hamlin had a pistol, but did not fire."

The Rev. Jno. Vaughan, a colored minister of the Hard Shell Baptist persuasion, some 80 years of age, died suddenly in Edgecombe county a few days since. He is said to have been a walking biblical dictionary, and on one occasion connected with Phillips' Battalion in the Battle of Bull Run, on which occasion Vaughan undertook to exhort his doings which were a cross between an atheist's doubts and universalist dogmas. So says the Rocky Mount Mail.

Horrific Murder in Virginia of a Former Citizen of Richmond.

Aspecial to the Richmond Dispatch of Thursday morning gives the following account of a most atrocious murder near the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs:

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA., December 3.—At an early hour this morning Mr. A. J. Dotson, who was once connected with Garber's express in Richmond, but was recently employed as clerk in the store of J. C. Bright & Co., at Greenbrier bridge, six miles west of here, was found upon the floor of the store in a dying condition, surrounded by a pool of his own blood, with a severe gash in his forehead, skull crushed in several places, eight inches of which have since been exposed—one eye and cheekbone cut out of an ear, and one ear cut entirely in two, leaving the skull at the mouth. The wounds were evidently inflicted with a two-pound weight, which was found near him beheaded with blood.

Contrary to his custom, he had his pistol in his pocket, of which one is believed to have been discharged, and blood stains on the floor of the store by an old negro was found on the floor, and had been discharged the contents having entered the door near where Mr. Dotson was found.

He is alive at 7 o'clock to-night, but cannot live long, and being unconscious, of course, cannot give any explanation of his situation. Various conjectures as to who were the perpetrators of this dastardly crime, and that there is not as yet one slightest clue that might lead to their detection. Mr. Dotson is a most highly respectable gentleman, and one esteemed by all who know him. He has a family.

(Second Dispatch.)

GREENBRIER WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA., December 31.—To-night about 7 o'clock Mr. A. C. Liggett, a special officer of this country, called at the house of Mr. Dotson, the gentleman who was so fearfully butchered this morning, to inquire after his condition. Upon being invited in, he approached the bedside of the dying man and, looking at his signs asked him if he would tell him who hurt him. Greatly to the surprise and astonishment of those present, Mr. Dotson spoke and said: "Ned Rives he came to the store after midnight last night, bought a bill of goods of me amounting to $25.65, took them up, and started away without paying me. I asked him to stop, which he did, failing to agree upon any terms of settlement, he said it was late at night when we would adjust it. This he consented to do, but knowing him to be a desperate character, I put a pistol in my pocket, sat down, and must have fallen asleep, for the next thing I knew was when I realized that he was lying upon the floor, shot, and Rives beating me over the head with a two-pound weight. I managed to draw my pistol, and fire, and remember that Rives had got wounded in his arm, and must have been hit in the shoulder, as he went out of the store, and ran off. I then approached him, and, by 11 o'clock, had the monster securely tied and on the way to the jail.

Rives is a tall, rugged, savage-looking negro, about twenty-five years old, negroes from about Charlotteville.

Mr. Dotson is by this time probably dead, and apprehensions are felt that his murderer will be lynched.

Mr. Liggett deserves great praise for his energy, skill, and pluck he has saved in bringing this fiend to justice.

A. J. Dotson, formerly of Richmond, Va., respectably connected there, and more recently employed at a store at Greenbrier Bridge, near White Sulphur Springs, was found at an early hour Thursday on the floor of the store in a dying condition. His wife was shot, and he and other horribly mutilated. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

Mr. Beck is reported as saying, in all my experience with the law, I have never seen a man who clings to his wife. He never made a promise to me or to anybody that I know, that he was not willing to keep to the letter. When reminded of some disagreeable pledge, he would rub his head vexatiously and growl, "What an infernal fool I was ever to promise that—but he always stuck to it."

Under date of December 29, Governor McEnergy, of Louisiana, telegraphs as follows to the Hon. R. H. Marr, who is now in New York, in regard to the situation in New Orleans: "All quiet and will continue so. Hope to control organization of House unless prevented by United States troops."

THE SOUTH.—The New Orleans Picayune is jubilant over the large receipts of cotton at the principal cities of the South during the present season, and ascribe the increased receipts over last year to the extraordinary fine weather for picking and hauling, and to the efficiency and better organization of the staple. The Picayune adds: "One of the gratifying incidents of this year's industry in the South is the economy which has accompanied it. One of our most intelligent bank presidents said, a few days ago, that there had been a saving of $15,000,000 in production and economy for the crop which comes to this city. With such a production and such an economy in the direction of it, who can doubt the rapid restoration of the prosperity and wealth of the South?"

The history and objects of the White League of Louisiana were stated to a sub-committee of Congress at New Orleans Thursday, by Gen. Ogden, the commander of the organization. He shows that the white people of Louisiana were forced to organize themselves for self-protection against the outrage of the Kehlog usurpation; that they cared nothing as to who held office under the State Government, so that the rebels were incompetent men, and that at the recent election the League gave protection to voters of all political parties, and of all colors.

Europe bristles with bayonets, although peace reigns everywhere except in Spain. Germany has an immense army, 1,500,000. French army will in two years be increased to 3,000,000 men, and Russia will have a standing army of 750,000 and a reserve of 1,740,000; Austria could take the field with 500,000 men, Italy with 400,000, and Turkey with 200,000. England has 500,000 men to defend her soil, and could put 70,000 to 80,000 men into a European war.

The conductor tactfully asked if she had sent her husband if he would wait until he had gone and kissed his mother-in-law, but, receiving a mild negative, jerked his little bell.

"My real number is six, but my hand will bear squeezing," is what she said to the young man at the glove-counter. And the great thick-headed lunatic got her a pair of five-and-a-half gloves without finding how much squeezing her hand would bear. We should have worked at that job an hour but she should have had an exact fit.

They have a great respect for old age. Watch a young lady seated in a street car between a young gentleman and an elderly one and see how determined she is not to incommod the latter by crowding against the.
